Presentation of Our Lord and Savior into the Temple

When Christ was 40-days old, his parents, according to the Jewish tradition of that time, brought Him to the Temple. It was customary for them to offer a sacrifice to the Lord: a pair of turtledoves or two pigeons, depending on the family's status. St. Luke's Gospel tells us that when Joseph and Mary came to the Temple with the Infant Jesus, the Venerable Simon, who is described as being a "just and devout man," met them. God had promised him that he would not die until he had seen the coming of the Messiah, Who would bring deliverance to Israel. Also in the Temple was the Prophetess Anna, who also recognized that Jesus was destined for great things.

The custom of bringing babies to church on the 40th day continues down to our own day for both male and female children, and every mother who brings her newborn child to church on the 40th day is remembering the Presentation of our Lord Jesus.
